WORKS IN PROGRESS

- “Legislating Symbols: Does Status Threat Cause Voters to Demand Symbolic Representation?”
 - I am using machine learning to quantify and describe the scope of symbolic legislation in the U.S., and experimental survey research to understand what symbolic legislation means to voters, and how this meaning differs from material economic policies.
- “Political Ideology in Campaign Mail” with Josh Kalla and David Broockman
- “Can a National Domestic Exchange Program “Bridge Divides”?” with Juliana Schroeder
 - Schroeder and I work with a domestic exchange program for high-school students that aims to connect divided Americans by facilitating free, one-week exchanges for teenagers to connect and build shared experiences with other teenagers from different regions and backgrounds. We are working on a project to understand the impact of this cross-country travel and connection, using longitudinal survey methodology, a between-subjects experiment, and ethnographic methodology collected over one week of a summer exchange in Jackson, Georgia.
